THE Manager of the Theatrical Company that lately arrived in Hongkong, writes from the capital of China, that the Chinese have been forced to surrender beyond their control to let up the preparation at great expense the above building was formerly used as a theatre. Everything has been made so comfortable and complete as possible. The Hall has been removed, and all the old seats have been replaced by new ones. The building is finished, and attention is called to the fact that Gas will be used for lighting the building. The Manager would further say that if energy and industry will secure the patronage of the Public, he has no fears for the result. It is the intention to produce a new production of the Revue at the following places:

H. M. S. "PRINCE OF WALES."
Hongkong, 1st December, 1894.

AN endeavour is being made to raise by subscription a fund in China for the purpose of assisting the Widows, Orphans and other dependents on those who perished in H. M. Ship "Princess of Wales."

The Officers and Ship's Companies of H. M. Vessels at Hongkong have subscribed one hundred and twenty dollars, and it is hoped that the liberality of the Community of this Colony will be able to make up the balance.

It is proposed that the money raised be distributed in the form of a gratuity to the Widows, Orphans, and other dependents of the late Ship's Companies, appointed for that purpose.

The Oriental Bank Corporation and Chartered Bank have kindly undertaken to receive the subscriptions.

WE imagine that most of our readers are acquainted of the anomalies which the German Emperor causes in their own legislation. It was necessary for two great reasons so the King of Protestant succession failing with the death of George III. to embrace this German element, although it was at the time extremely unpopular, one reason, being the desirability of comparing Royal blood from the blood of our ancestors, and the other the desire to strengthen the ties between the two royal houses. There cannot be a question that in these respects the Germans have been a complete success, notwithstanding all the faults, which have attended the marriage of the Prince Both George the first, and George the second were so intensely German as to be actually possible he might turn Mahomedan if it suited to enslave the Moslem race, and therefore it may be probable that he would have found it easy to find his flock lost to be a stanch adherent of the religion of the Prophet, as the Emperor Charles lived, but it seems to us, the centre drift of his policy as King of Belgium has been characterised so prominently by Papal aspirations and by antagonism to the English, that he must have ever been a staunch Roman Catholic in disguise.

We doubt much whether Prince Albert and his wife have any real sympathy about him. Prince Leopold, in fact, we believe it to be pretty certain that the King of the Belgians was Prince Albert's monitor, and that the Prince if not at all, was nevertheless a most disaffected pupil. At all events, when Prince Albert's brother assumed the Roman Catholic faith that he might marry the Queen of Portugal, he made no mention of his relations to the political or religious opinions of his brothers, and therefore it may be safely con-

Great Britain has been under her rule. Prince Albert had great ascendancy over the Queen, and it is not surprising how much he was loved and mourned after his death.

It is well for England that she has a wise and upright statesman to guide her destiny, and that she has a monarch who has been so uniformly represented in history. It may be uncharitable in us to ascribe such a conclusion to the Queen, but it is true that the influence of the King of the Belgians in the conduct of his commercial policy, was antagonism to England, and undoubtedly the strides he made in introducing his country into the European and foreign markets, were wonderful. There can be no doubt that his circumstance it was that induced the great Sir Robert Peel to resign, and to leave the management of the country to us from his commercial policy, as to give trade that enormous stimulus which has been so beneficial to British interests.

Equally certain is it, that the influence of the Queen in diverting the German influence which prevailed at Court, Lord Palmerston when foreign minister, opened the way to the French alliance, and that the Queen's influence in the cabinet, and the Bank of England, the Treasury, and the Colonies, was so great, that it was

SPAIN.

Madrid, April 24.

It is stated that at a meeting of the Progressive party it was decided that the Government should insist on their abstention from politics.

Senator Macias having sent a contrary opinion.

Spain.

Explanation:—expressed their refusal by Fern, and the relations between that country and the Emperor.

GENOVA.

April 25.

THE KING OF THE BELGIANS.

The King of the Belgians has left this city.

...of a so-called free people are gathering for the purpose of deliberation, is to be explained by the necessity in which the orders were from Paris to order, at whatever cost, among the population from the Convention of the 15th of September the vote raised to judgement.

A week ago those journals still permitted attacks on the Convention. Thanks to the intervention of certain journals, which under the pretext of democracy play the card of Bonaparrism, it was still possible to believe that the Convention would be able to finish the work of the Emperor and the Emperor.

Besides Garibaldi on his rock at Caprera, he has long and the Emperor applied to him the pressure given to him.

There are, however, symptoms which ought to have given a slice to the real sense of the Convention of the 18th September. The "France", a journal, whose relations with M. Douvrou de Hillyer are well known, has just published an article in which it deplores for Madrid what he was doing in the equality of Ambassador, had had a conversation with the Emperor. Having asked what was to be done, the Emperor had replied: "I will do what I can."
